Combating Sexual Assault on NY's College Campuses

New York's Enough is Enough initiative resulted in a sweeping law passed in June 2015 that will combat sexual assault on all New York college and university campuses.

THE LAW COMBATS SEXUAL ASSAULT ON COLLEGE CAMPUSES BY CREATING:

- Statewide definition of affirmative consent as a knowing, voluntary, and mutual decision among all participants to engage in sexual activity
- Statewide amnesty policy encouraging students to report incidents of sexual assault or other sexual violence by granting immunity for certain campus policy violations, such as drug and alcohol use
- Students' Bill of Rights, which campuses will be required to distribute to all students, informing sexual violence victims of their legal rights and available resources.
- Comprehensive training requirement for administrators, staff, and students, including at new student orientations
- Requirement for campuses to annually submit incidents of reported sexual violence to the State Education Department to be made publicly available on their website
- A sexual assault victims unit within the State Police, specializing in response to sexual assaults and related crimes and training of local law enforcement
- Requirement for first responders to notify survivors of their right to contact outside law enforcement
